Parking at The Writing Barn:

Once you enter the gates, please follow the dirt drive to the right as it curves. Drive between the red brick building on your left—a private house—and the big green building on your right—the Hall. At the back of the property, you will see The Writing Barn marked by a bright green sign next to a white Buddha statue. There is parking for 20 + cars in the spaces on the right. If the back lot is filled up, please circle the property and go back and park at the lot closer to the private (red) house or the two story Book House. Please do not park under the trees nearest the Barn as the septic system resides underneath.

Parking at the Book House:

Once you enter the gates, please follow the dirt drive to the left as it curves. The red brick building is our founder's private home. Drive past the house and two small cabins to the two-story Book House with the big wrap-around porch; parking is just to the left. If you accidentally go right at the curve, don't worry! Simply drive past the Writing Barn (with the green sign and small white Buddha statue) and follow the circle to the Book House.
